WHERE IS YOUR WEBSITE?

Privacy Policy

Effective date: November 13, 2026 | Last updated: November 13, 2026

1. Who we are and what this policy covers

Where is Your Website? is operated by AYAM Brands, a Wyoming business ("we," "us," or "our"). This Privacy Policy explains how we handle personal information in connection with https://whereisyourwebsite.com, inquiries, business communications, and our website design services.

Contact us at help@whereisyourwebsite.com or AYAM Brands, 32 N Gould St, Sheridan, WY 82801, United States. This policy does not govern independent third-party websites or the privacy practices of clients whose websites we build.

2. Information we collect

Information you provide: name, business name, email address, optional existing website URL, project description, messages, design preferences, and other information you choose to share. For accepted projects, we also handle project content, approvals, correspondence, billing contact details, invoice records, and payment status.

Information collected in connection with site operation: IP address, browser and device information, requested pages, referring page or source, timestamps, error records, and security or spam-prevention signals may be processed by our site and infrastructure providers. Inquiry records include a submission identifier, timestamp, source page, and selected design concept where applicable.

Business research: when we contact a business about our services, we may obtain relevant business contact details and publicly available business information from business websites, directories, referrals, or research providers. We use these for relevant business outreach and honor opt-out requests.

We do not request sensitive personal information through our forms. Do not submit government identification numbers, health records, card numbers, bank credentials, passwords, or other sensitive information. Demo forms are illustrative and are not intended to collect personal information.

3. How we use information

We use information to respond to inquiries; assess project requirements; prepare proposals and invoices; provide, revise, and hand off websites; communicate about projects; keep business records; operate and protect our website; prevent spam, fraud, and misuse; diagnose errors; and meet legal obligations or resolve disputes.

We may use relevant business contact details for direct outreach about our website services. You may opt out at any time. Submitting an inquiry does not subscribe you to a newsletter or authorize unrelated advertising. We do not use inquiry text or private project materials as public testimonials without permission.

4. Cookies, analytics, and tracking

Our website and hosting infrastructure may use cookies, local storage, and similar technologies for essential operation, remembering interface choices, security, and abuse prevention. Server logs may record technical usage without cookies. Browser controls can block or delete stored data, although some functions may be affected.

This policy is based on an inquiry-focused service without advertising pixels, behavioral advertising, or cross-site tracking. We do not sell personal information, share it for cross-context behavioral advertising, or permit third parties to track visitors across unrelated websites for advertising through our site.

Browser Do Not Track signals do not change essential site operations or security logging. We do not conduct cross-site behavioral tracking regardless of that signal. Where applicable law requires recognition of Global Privacy Control or another opt-out preference signal, we honor it for the processing covered by that law.

If we introduce optional analytics or tracking that requires additional notice or consent, we will update our disclosures and provide required controls before enabling it.

5. How information is disclosed

We disclose relevant information to service providers that support hosting, database storage, email, security, business administration, invoicing, and delivery of our services. Authorized personnel and contractors may access information needed for their work, subject to appropriate confidentiality and access restrictions.

Website-building and AI-assisted production services may process project instructions or materials necessary to provide the requested work. We limit the information provided to what is reasonably needed and do not authorize our providers to use private client materials for unrelated advertising. Do not include confidential third-party information in project content unless you are authorized to provide it.

We may disclose information when reasonably necessary to comply with law or valid legal process, protect rights and safety, investigate fraud, or establish or defend legal claims. In a merger, sale, financing, or reorganization, information may be disclosed to advisers and relevant parties subject to appropriate protections and applicable law.

We may also disclose information at your direction or with your consent. We do not provide personal information to other businesses for their own direct marketing.

6. Invoices and payments

There is currently no online checkout on our website. Approved projects are invoiced separately. If you pay through a third-party payment or invoicing service, that provider handles the payment details under its own terms and privacy notice. We receive the billing and transaction information needed to reconcile the invoice, such as payment status, amount, date, and transaction reference; our website forms do not collect payment-card details.

7. Retention

We retain personal information only as long as reasonably needed for the purposes described here, including responding to inquiries, performing projects, maintaining required tax and accounting records, resolving disputes, preventing abuse, and enforcing agreements.

Retention depends on the type of record, whether there is an active business relationship, legal requirements, and any unresolved dispute. We periodically review retained information and delete or deidentify information no longer needed. Limited information may remain in restricted backups until their normal deletion cycle, or in an opt-out record to honor your communication preferences.

8. Your choices and privacy requests

You may ask to access, correct, or delete personal information by emailing help@whereisyourwebsite.com. Depending on your location and applicable law, you may also have rights to obtain a portable copy, restrict or object to processing, withdraw consent where processing relies on consent, or appeal a denial. These rights may be subject to legal exceptions.

We may request reasonable information to verify your identity or an authorized agent's authority. We respond within the period required by applicable law and explain any denial or limitation. You may request reconsideration by replying with "Privacy appeal" in the subject line. We do not unlawfully discriminate against anyone for exercising privacy rights.

To stop promotional outreach, use the unsubscribe mechanism in the message or email us with "Unsubscribe." We may still send necessary project, billing, security, or legal communications. Withdrawing consent does not invalidate processing that occurred before withdrawal.

Where applicable, you may complain to the privacy regulator or other public authority in your jurisdiction. We do not claim that every regional privacy statute applies to this business or grant rights that override lawful recordkeeping obligations.

9. Security and international processing

We use reasonable administrative, technical, and organizational measures designed to protect personal information. No internet transmission or storage system is completely secure, and we cannot guarantee absolute security. Contact us promptly if you believe your information has been misused in connection with our services.

We operate in the United States. Our providers may process or store information in the United States or other countries, where laws may differ from those where you live. Where legally required, we use applicable safeguards for international transfers. Merely using the website is not treated as consent to a transfer that separately requires legal authorization.

10. Children and external websites

Our website and services are directed to adults acting for businesses, not children under 13. We do not knowingly collect personal information from children under 13. If you believe a child has provided information, contact us so we can investigate and delete it where required.

Third-party websites linked from our site have separate privacy practices. Review their notices before providing information. This policy does not authorize a client to use the same text for a website with different data practices.

11. Changes to this policy

We may update this policy as our services, practices, or legal obligations change. The latest version will appear on our website with a revised effective or last-updated date. For material changes, we will provide additional notice as required, such as a prominent website notice or email where appropriate. We will obtain consent where required before using previously collected information for materially different purposes.
